Evergreens

The evergreens constitute a group of plants which are most valued for landscape effects. A wide diversity of color and habit of growth render them particularly useful for limited areas of foundation plantings or for bed or border uses, others for screens, hedges, windbreaks, and for group and specimen plantings. They are always desirable for any landscape planting in that they give both Summer and Winter effects.

Our evergreens have been transplanted at regular intervals and have developed a mass of fine, fibrous roots with corresponding compact top growth. You are cordially invited to come to our nursery where you may make your selection from our hundreds of fine specimens.

ABIES · Fir

Abies concolor (White Fir). One of the finest ornamental evergreens. It is almost as blue as the Colorado Blue Spruce.

Roses

The loveliest of all flowers is the Rose and the sweetest of all perfumes is its fragrance. Almost every home has room for at least a few. To achieve best results, a good loamy soil, well drained and exposed to full sunshine should be selected. Prepare the soil by spading deeply and mixing with it a liberal quantity of well rotted cow manure or a lesser quantity of commercial fertilizer.

Vines, Climbers and Ground Cover Plants

Nothing adds so much to the homelike appearance of a house as a few well chosen vines. Vines find their place as screening on a trellis, to balance proportionately high plants in a landscape planting, to hide unsightly objects, and to soften ugly corners of buildings.

Included in the many varieties we stock are both evergreen and deciduous types, clinging and twining sorts, and those vines used for either their flowers or interesting foliage.

Vegetables

Plan a defense garden this year! Only a small area is needed to produce enough food for the entire family. Young plants of Lettuce, Cabbage, Tomatoes, Parsley, Celery, and Peppers, should be planted out after the danger of frost has passed. Our young plants of each of these vegetables will meet the demands of everyone.
